Mobile Medic extends drive

Ambulance Service Wednesday said the firm had received over 9,000 subscription members and would definitely begin service in West Harrison and Hancock Counties Aug. 1.

Owner and president Doug Burgin earlier Tuesday said that the firm had received enough memberships in Harrison County to begin operations but had fallen some 800 memberships short of a needed 2,800 memberships for Hancock County,

"How we will serve Hancock County is still undetermined at this time," Burgin said. "We will definitely serve them though," he added.

Burgin said that the membership drive was being extended until July 31 to give those skeptical about the sincerity of the firm a final chance to join before memberships were curtailed for

"We are hopeful," Burgin said, "that we will pick up those 800 memberships that we need from Hancock County so that we can put an ambulance in the Bay-Waveland area."

Burgin said that the company could serve the area from Pass Christian but that he didn't want to do that if he could avoid it.

At last count the firm had slightly over 2,000 memberships from Hancock County and a little over 7,000 members from Harrison County, Burgin said.

Workers at the Mobile-Medic office in Gulfport reported another 165 memberships in Wednesday morning's mail but said probably only 10-20 could be expected to be from Hancock County.

Burgin said that Mobile-Medic would station four modular ambulances units in Gulfport, one in the Long Beach-Pass Christian area and another at the intersection of U.S. 90 and Mississippi 603 in Bay St. Louis if additional support is demonstrated in Hancock County.

Mobile-Medic has three units ready to begin operation immediately and hopes to have another two in one week, Burgin

Any member of the service living in -Hancock County is provided ambulance service to hospitals in Gulfport, Picayune or Slidell WITHOUT ANY EXTRA CHARGE beyond the $15 membership fee, Burgin said. Nonmembers are assessed a small mileage fee if transported beyond county lines in addition to the $45 emergency fee.

New residents to the area will not be excluded from becoming members at the time of their moving, Burgin said, though the membership drive will definitely be closed to others after July 31 until the following year, he added.

Tax increase looms to finance budget

Bay St. Louis property owners in the school district may face a $5 increase in ad valorem taxes next year if a proposed four mill hike for the school system is approved by the city council. Bay-Waveland Municipal School District trustees accepted a $1,372,183 school budget Monday night for 1974-75, which showed a 6.2 percent increase ugure. In presenting the new budget, school superintendent J. D. McCullouch said "Inflation has hit the schools just like it hit your homes". After a lengthy discussion of the matter, with all Bay and Waveland city. officials present, the board accepted the budget. Included in the document with standard operating costs were extensive renovation projects to school buildings, purchase of new auditorium seats and a sound system for the Junior High and a six percent overall employee salary raise. The budget does not allow for a possible 60 percent salary increase now in demand by Gulf Coast area teachers.

Sam Favre, attorney for the board, warned city officials of a 1973-74 deficit of $67,000, which he attributed to past administrations "not meeting their responsibilities". The requested budget can be met, Favre noted, by an additional four mills plus $30,000 in short term notes and $1 million in reassessments.

Although the school millage is now at the 25 mill maximum allowed by state law, a previous local and private bill passed by the legislature authorized the four mills raise.

Bay St. Louis tax commissioner Clarence Ladner said Tuesday that the millage increase, which would up the school district's total to 29 mills and cost property owners an average of $4.80 in additional taxes is "the only solution that we can find to the Ladner based his figure on the city's 18,000 parcels of land at an average assessment of $1,200 each. The total assessed valuation for the schooldistrict, which includes Waveland, Bay St. Louis and Outside, is $21 million.

"If anyone can come up with another way or a better way to raise the money, we'd be delighted to hear it," Ladner said when questioned on public reaction to the probable tax increase.

special session to take official action on the matter as deadline for submitting the budget to the state Dept. of Education falls before the council's next regular meeting.

Mistrial declared in Thomas case

A new trial date was set Friday for Alfred Thomas, accused of par ticipating in the slaying of a Pearlington grocer Aug. 31, 1973 after a Hancock County jury hearing the case failed to reach a verdict.

Declaring a mistrial at 1:53 p.m., Circuit Court Judge Floyd Logan reset the trial for Oct. 21.

The case against Thomas, 22, went to the jury shortly before 7 p.m., Thursday following two days of testimony.

Pros. Atty. Albert Necaise had attempted to prove during the trial that Thomas drove the getaway car in aiding and abetting the Aug. 31 slaying of Pearlington grocer Forrest Summers. 66.

Another Slidell man, Bernard Curry, 25, is accused of firing the pistol that killed Summers.

by Bob Innes Long Beach

Bureau Chief The Long Beach City Council Tuesday night accepted Hancock Bank's low interest bid of 5.8 percent per annum on five notes of $18,000 to purchase two 60-passenger school buses for the Long Beach School District.

After a reading of the bids by board attorney Harold DeMetz the council voted to unanimously accept the low bid by Hancock Bank. Merchants Bank was the only other bid at six percent. In other business the council took under advisement the $2.1 million school budget of the Long Beach Municipal Separate School District.

School Superintendent Thomas L. Reeves told the board that this year's budget represents a 5.2 percent increase over the budget for 1973.

"I think the school board did an excellent job with the budget because things are so much higher in the cost of living than 5.2 percent," explained

In reply Mayor Donnie Simmons said the council needs a little more time to "review the budget and that final action will come at the next regular session of the council."

The council accepted a bid of $2,628,36 from Jack Cocke and Co. for equipment in the city's utility van to be used by the fire department.

Final action was taken on a motorcycle ordinance requiring drivers to wear helmets within city limits.

The ordinance unanimously adopted states that the occupant must ride on the permanent or regular seat and that the vehicle must have an adequate horn or other warning device in good working order and audible at a minimum distance of 200 feet.

The ordinance also requires a muffler in good working order and in constant operation to prevent excessive or .

Du Pont confirms DeLisle site for plant The city council will have to meet in

The Du Pont Company confirmed Tuesday definite plans to construct a $125 million titanium dioxide plant on a 2,200 acre site now under option in De Lisle.

An expenditure of $8 million has been authorized for detailed design and order of long delivery equipment.

Arthur H. Geil, Wilmington, Del. vice president and general manager of the company's Pigments Department, said the plant, which will take about 30 months to complete, will be located directly east of the old Pine Hills it will and of the Bay of St. Louis struction will begin as soon as Do receives necessary pennite various state he mile to the control of the control of

A company spokesman in Bay St. Louis Tuesday told the Echo that a work force of up to 1,500 will be employed for construction of the plant with completion expected in late 1977. Initial employment for operation of the plant will be 500 to 600 persons, which will expand to a possible 1,000 over a period of years as the plant production inGulfport areas with company officials

Du Pont first confirmed an interest in the DeLisle site, in November, 1973. Since then the anticipated initial capacity has been increased from 100,000 tons to more than 125,000 tons per year. Geil said the additional capacity is in response to increasing market demand for titanium dioxide, a pigment used in paint, plastics, paper, pointing ink and floor covering. The plantis planned with further expansion

As a major producer of Ti02, Du Pont operates plants at Wilmington, Del., New Johnsonville, Tenn., and Antioch, Du Pont's fourth Ti02 plant will use the chloride manufacturing process, pioneered by Du Pont. Both the Antioch and New Johnsonville plants use the chloride process exclusively. The Wilmington plant, Du Pont's oldest Ti02 facility, uses both the chloride and sulfate processes.

In a statement released Tuesday Gov. Bill Waller said, "We are extremely proud of this historic announcement by Du Pont, because it dramatically points out the high standing our state now enjoys in the eyes of a growing list of blue chip industries. This announcement is the result of a great deal of hard work and study by Du Pont officials and by state and local groups. After this extensive study period by the company and by our regulatory agencies, we are convinced. that the Du Pont Company will be of great benefit to our state and to the Mississippi Gulf Coast,

"We offer our most hearty welcome to Mr. Geil and to the Du Pont Company and pledge the continued close cooperation of the State of Mississippi in the construction phase of this plant expansion."

Farm Safety

Week is set

When a child topples to the ground it usually evokes momentary concern but usually an abashed grin or a fret; when a teen-ager slips it usually brings on lighthearted comment; when an adult crashes like a forest oak there's concern if everything is okay when he or she gets up; but for an elderly person to fall, oftentimes it results in broken bones and long periods of convalescence.

But for all ages, falls are serious. So much so that the Hancock County board of supervisors is joining other civic minded groups throughout the nation July 25-31 by proclaiming that period as National Farm Safety Week with special emphasis on prevention of accidental issuing a local proclamation the supervisors pointed out that agriculture is the third most hazardous vocation in the United States. And falls account for a goodly share of rural accidents. In fact, falls were responsible for nearly one fourth of the work related injuries reported in a recent state farm accident survey. An analysis of the accidents by the National Safety Council revealed that one fifth of the falls involved persons below five years or over 65. The youngsters bounced back as their injuries were less severe, but the elderly often suffered permanent crippling or death.

The Hancock County Farm Bureau is sponsoring special safety education projects and urges the public to join with them in making the county a

National Farm Safety Week

PROCLAMATION

Mr. Dolph Kellar, President of the Board of Supervisors Hancock, County. July 15, 1974

The growth of mankind to its present state of advancement has been due to the amazing, unparalleled efficiency, dedication, and productive capacity of American agriculture. In its move to greater technology certain inherent perils have developed in the use of modern farming equipment and techniques which today make agriculture the third most hazardous occupation in the United States.

Farm accidents can and do strike at all stages of farm life; at work, at home, and at play. The results of these accidents, the disabling injuries and tragic loss of life, can be curtailed if a few simple precautions are followed by each farm family.

The precious waste of human and economical resources can be reduced by the same energies and talents which propelled agriculture to its present stages of productivity and prosperity.

Now, therefore, I, Dolph Kellar, President of the Board of Supervisors, do hereby call on the people of Hancock County to observe the week of July 25-31, 1974 as National Farm Safety Week. I urge all farm families and those persons allied with agriculture to intensify their efforts to curtail and halt accidents when and where possible,

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 15 day of July in the year of our Lord, Nineteen Hundred and Seventy-Four and of the Independence of the United States of America, the One Hundred Ninety-Eighth,

Parents, teachers get along

By FRANK MACOMBER Copley News Service

Parent-teacher associations don't click at many schools because their viewpoints about how to run a classroom often are miles apart,

At a Wilmington, Calif., school it's different, however. For example, at Fries School, mothers may go to class with their children. Or the students may learn more about reading and mathematics by playing with educational games turned out by some of their mothers.

If one pupil can't solve a math problem, the mother of another pupil helps to work it

The whole program flies in the face of the theory that teachers and parents each should tend to their own knitting. At Fries, there's even a waiting list of parents who want to take the training course.

Fries officials discovered parents and teachers can get along and work together when the school began to receive financial aid from state and federal governments under so-called Title I grants. Title I schools are those designated as educationally and culturally deprived.

One condition tied to the grants is that parents must be involved in planning instructional programs and goals for their children's school.

There were those who believed the teacher-parent relationship simply wouldn't work, But Mrs. Nikki Guidinger, who coordinates the teamprogram, says it does, and then some.

The book is "An American Life - One Man's Road to Watergate" (Atheneum; 338 pages; $10).

Part of Magruder's motive in writing the book was to raise money to support his family in the manner it had become accustomed to. Part, also, appears to be an effort to purge his soul of an incredible number of misdeeds - all in the name of the election and survival of Richard Nixon.

This bright and promising young man tells the story of his life, one that saw him jumping from job to job for a ong time. It also has been a life of close family ties, and a life of increased attention to booze, of shaken nerves and finally desperation as he and others sought to hold a network of lies intact.

Finally, the lies fell of their own weight and with their fall others. They trudged up to prosecutors' offices, offered to "come clean" and bargained for the best deal they could get behind bars.

If we were to believe all we see and hear we might assume that the "energy crisis" is over. Some of the major oil companies which a few months ago were urging us to adopt energy conservation measures are now bombarding their retail dealers with hard-sell messages and ideas for increasing gasoline sales.

On the open road, the 55 m.p.h. speed limit is so widely flouted that there are not enough patrolmen to inhibit the speeders who have concluded that gas-conservation is no longer necessary.

While speed violators must answer to the local courts, if they are caught, the oil companies are faced with a tougher problem. They have to explain at the bar of public opinion their ambiguous policy of preaching conservation while promoting

The fact remains that despite return to hard-sell marketing to keep gasoline stocks moving, the world-wide supply of petroleum is as limited as ever. Eventually, the wells will run dry, and substitute energy sources are a long way from full

Nor is the industry's inconsistent approach to the supply-demand problem much help to this country's economic problems. Oil imports at the high prices now demanded by the oil exporting nations play havoc with the U.S. balance of payments. Largely because of crude oil purchases, our trade deficit is at a high

A preferable and far more consistent policy would be to reduce our dependence on foreign crude supplies while continuing to reinforce our new-found conservation ethic. The sudden splurge of selling activity by the oil companies can only undermine the public's incentive to save gasoline or other energy sources. Then, should there be a new Arab oil embargo or other disruption in fuel supplies, pleas for voluntary conservation will be skeptically received or widely ignored by the public,

The fact that Americans are consuming gasoline this year at a rate of 7 percent less than they did in 1973 confirms the effectiveness of national energy-saving programs. What is needed now is a fresh affirmation of the necessity for conservation.

Here the oil companies have a major responsibility. Among other things they can adjust their supplies to meet current demand rather than encourage us to return to the previous consumption levels. Concurrently, the federal government can stress the advantages of stretching out present petroleum supplies while alternate energy sources are being developed.

There is another persuasive factor that every one of us can understand. As the statistics accumulate on highway accidents in the wake of the lower speed limit, there is growing evidence of the safety advantages in holding motorists to 55 m.p.h. It appears lives are being saved by the thousands as a result of this aspect of the energy crisis planning.

If American businessmen and consumers do not have the character and will power to discipline themselves the federal bureaucracy stands ready to do it for nem, as millions of rationing coupons in federal vaults remind us.

Let's look at the record. Does somebody need you? Do you do good to your neighbors?

Sometimes we look at ourself and say: "Who could possibly need you? You are old and wasted, drifting in the backwater of life, unable to repay your neighbor half the good he does for you." And then we rationalize the answer this way: Being old and wasted is the result

WHAT ABOUT AMTRAK? When word got out recently that Mississippi was still in the running for a new rail passenger system, trafficweary South-Mississippians breathed a sigh of hope. After all, transportation is the name of the game in our neck of the woods particularly on the Coast, where traffic is always heavy.

But what about Amtrak, the National Rail Passenger Corporation? How much do we know about it? Can it really help ease our traffic problems?

For starters, Amtrak was created by the Congress back in 1970 as a threeyear experiment in government "forprofit" management of the nation's railpassenger system. Congress armed Amtrak with a $40 million grant to cover start-up costs and $100 million in loan guarantees to conduct a capital improvement program.

The original charter instructed Amtrak to provide continuing service over a pared-down rail network by contracting out to participating railroads for the necessary equipment and services. Additionally, it required

It hasn't exactly been a bed of roses -for Amtrak, though: Most available railroad passenger equipment is in poor condition, forcing Amtrak to sideline as many as 20 per since its inception. It quickly spent its original grant, but Congress raced to the rescue with a total of $319 million in grants-to-cover-operating-deficits. And now - only last week in fact the House of Representatives gives approval to another $200 million for Fiscal Year 1975 grants to Amtrak. I voted for H. R. 15427 because I think this country desperately needs an improved rail transportation system. As I told my colleagues, however, I am leery of this system and if all regions of the country — including the South cannot benefit from it, I may not

Thank you, Mr. Oscar Peterson; many, many "Thank yous" from the people of Cedar Point, the First Ward, and all of Bay St. Louis. By rebuilding the municipal pier, destroyed by Hurricane Betsy, you have provided a much needed facility to the morale, well being, and pleasure of those who use the pier. BUT, more importantly, the rebuilding of the pier has removed an ugly scar of past hurricanes, which is a definite and deterring factor to confidence in rebuilding our area. More such projects should be undertaken.

Other area firms joining as sustaining members supporting Jaycee projects include Mollere Realty, Mestayer Lumber Co., Sea Coast Echo, the Hancock Hawk and WPUP radio.

A drive for sustaining memberships in the Waveland Jaycees organization is turning out to be a successful chapter.

An appeal for sustaining membership affiliation is made to any individual, business firm or organization interested in the development of the city of Waveland, Funds derived from the specialized membership, which costs $35 per year and is tax deductible, support the many Jaycee projects in progress.

The $35 membership fee takes the place of the over abundance of requests for donations that area residents are besieged with throughout the year and entitles the sustaining member to receive the monthly newsletter as well as a framed plaque indicating membership. In addition, members' names will be listed on all news releases and publications emanating from the Waveland chapter.

Anticrime war wasting money?

WASHINGTON — Six years ago Congress created the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA), an agency within the U.S. Justice Department, to channel federal dollars into an effective war on crime through upgrading local police departments, court systems and corrections facilities.

Over the last six years, $3.4 billion has been spent by the LEAA and yet crime continues to rise in a seemingly unchecked fashion.

While the LEAA has succeeded in modernizing ma police-courts-corrections anticrime 'systems and procedures, the conclusion after six years is that it will take more than LEAA money to halt the

As if to emphasize this point, an LEAA study released this spring indicates that crime in America is far more widespread than the Federal Bureau of Investigation's annual survey reports. The LEAA study found that in some urban areas, the actual rate of crime is five times higher than the FBI's statistics, which are cited by President Nixon when he says the country is beginning to win the war on crime,

But FBI figures are based solely on-reports from police departments, which record only reported crime. The LEAA study found many times more crimes going unreported for a variety of reasons, including a belief that the police would do nothing and fear of retaliation by criminals.

The FBI figures are bad enough. Between 1963 and 1973, reported violent crimes - murder, rape, robbery, assault — increased 174 per cent, yet the population increased only 11 per cent.

In a recently published interview, LEAA administrator Donald Santarelli commented:

"Unless we do substantially more as a society than we have done about crime, we will see an intolerable, continuous problem. The criminaljustice system alone cannot solve this total societal prob-

"I think we have overemphasized the capability of paid professionals - police, courts and correctional institutions — to perform the civic, social and basic duty of establishing an orderly society. What we need is more citizen participation, rather than more and more paid professionals, in reducing the causes of crime."

Santarelli, 37, former associate deputy attorney general who has headed LEAA since April, 1973, says the nature of American society — characterized by high mobility, anonymity, shallow or no community involvements, malfunctioning family units — is the primary cause of crime.

When those institutions don't work very well - as we now find them not working in our society — you can't ask the criminal-justice system to replace all of them by itself,"

Whether it was because of this frustration or for other reasons, Santarelli has resigned his $40,000-a-year post, although he continues to serve until a successor is named and confirmed by the U.S.

The ostensible reason for Santarelli's resignation was

The United States Auto Club (USAC) conducted its "Miles-Per-Gallon Showdown" in the Arizona-Southern California area between January 10 and 13, 1974. All automobiles used in the test were acquired by USAC through normal retail channels. Many of the drivers were sports car enthusiasts and amateur rallyists. However,

The "Showdown" was divided into three distinct driving cycles:

1. Highway driving. Los Angeles to Tucson and return. A total distance of 972 miles. Average speed, 53 mph. 2. Light city traffic. Los Angeles area. 108 miles, total. Average speed, 25 mph. 3. Heavy city traffic. Los Angeles area, 61 miles, total, Average speed, 20 mph.

A Dart Sport coupe with the new standard 2.76 rear axle, 225 Slant Six engine, and manual transmission got 8.1 more miles per gallon than a six-cylinder Nova with manual transmission in the "light city traffic" cycle. The Dart Sport also got better mileage than the Nova in the other two driving cycles.

Waveland votes in condominiums

The Waveland Board of Aldermen Wednesday night voted unanimously to follow the recommendation of the city Planning and Zoning Commission which would allow the rezoning of approximately 1,000 feet of property from R-1 to R-3 to allow construction of multi-unit condominium dwellings.

In its decision the aldermen said they felt the growth of the city of Waveland justified their decision which had met opposition from some property owners in the area.

The property affected belongs to New Orleans businessman Floyd Wallis and is located at the western limits of the city of Waveland close to the Gulfside Assembly Church. The property which fronts Beach Boulevard is 300 feet wide and 1100 feet deep.

Under the zoning commission's proposal the first 200 feet of property would remain R-1, or single family residential, but the remaining 1,000 feet would be changed to R-3. A fence to re with the architecture of the multiple family units would be erected between the two property lines.

In a public hearing before aldermen June 25, opponents of the rezoning charged that the condominiums would cause devaluation of surrounding home owners' property and result in transient types "bringing their Schwegmann bags into the city of Waveland" and contributing nothing to the life of the

Those in favor of the development countered that the condominiums would significantly contribute to needed new housing and jobs in the city and marked a step in the right direction for future progress.

City attorney Lucien Gex Jr. told the board Wednesday night that further motions by the opponent's attorney Joseph Benvenutti had not been filed with the city, either seeking a delay or adding to the weight of testimony already presented in opposition to the

Its big number this year is promoting what seems to be a general influx of mistaken identity. What, for instance, are people named Mike Hargrove, Jack Brohamer, Greg Gross and Ken Reitz doing up there in the list of the top batters? Where are the real leaders? Where have Pete Rose and Bobby Murcer and Bobby Bonds gone?

At least we know the real Reggie Jackson is still at work in Oakland. It looks like the real Reggie, anyway. The only thing that does seem a little suspicious is the fact that this Reggie isn't popping off much. He just goes out there and performs like the best player in the game. No snarling quotes, no incidents with Charlie Finley, no squabbles with teammates.

The difference this time seems to be an added season of maturity. That and phenomenal relief pitching. At last glance, three of the lowest earned run averages in the National League could be found in the L.A. bullpen.

Walter Alston's biggest problem could be the same one that has plagued him for the last several years. There's just too much talent on his roster. Ricky Nobles (standing) of Cleveland displays several of his personalized cartoon sketches for Governor Bill Waller (seated), who is the subject in many of his satirical drawings. A graduate of Mississippi Delta Junior College, Nobles is the author of the state's only syndicated weekly cartoon service that deals with current events and politics in Mississippi. While presently serving as advertising manager for the Bolivar Commercial, Nobles is attending Delta State University as an art major. He began his career as a cartoonist three years ago and his political cartoons have appeared in the Echo for almost two years as well as a number of other publications throughout the state. Nobles feels that people in Mississippi can more easily relate to the humorous situations of Mississippi political figures and various incidents in the state, than they can to those on a national level.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of Emily Nelson Died July 20, 1973

SAFELY HOME I am home in Heaven, dear

Oh, so happy and so bright! There is perfect joy and beauty In this everlasting light.

All the pain and grief is over, Every restless tossing passed:

I am now at peace forever. Safely home in Heaven at

Did you wonder I so calmly Trod the valley of the shade? Oh! but Jesus' love illumined Every dark and fearful.

And He came Himself to meet me In that way so hard to tread; And with Jesus' arm to lean Could I have one doubt or dread?

Then you must not grieve so For I love you dearly still:

Try to look beyond earth's shadows. Pray to trust our Father's for you, So you must not idly stand; Do it now, while life remaineth... You shall rest in Jesus' land.

There is work still waiting

When that work is all completed, He will gently call you Home: Oh, the rapture of that meeting. Oh, the joy to see you come!
